ABOUT SUZANNE WIEBE

Suzanne has been working with high drive, and protection breeds for 40 years. She grew up in the 'old ways' of dog training, and progressed as the dog training world changed, reverting to the old ways. Currently working towards her certification in Applied Animal Behavior Consulting she has been studying for more than two years with some of today's top professionals in Behavior Modification and dog training.

She brings accumulated knowledge and decades of experience to help breeders understand what makes a performance dog, how to raise smarter and more confident puppies, and how to prevent reactive puppies in your bloodlines.

Suzanne's Training Philosophy

Dogs are cognitive, emotionally aware beings. We bring dogs into this world. They do not ask to be bred. That is why we must make every effort to enrich the dog's life and use positive methods to create a satisfying relationship with the dog, and create a dog who can adjust well to today's Urban Environment.

I have not personally seen dominant, stubborn, or stupid dogs. I've seen miscommunication, boredom, and frustration. I see dogs that have not been taught to learn, with coping skills and self-control. I engineer my program to give dogs every chance of easily understanding the behaviors I want. I believe drive, motivation, and obedience are reflections of the handler's skill, effort, and willingness to build a strong relationship with their dog. The core of today's successful dog is voluntary engagement.
